- co-operation in the elaboration and development of general German and international standards by other associations in the field of organic agriculture
- providing information to the public on the contents and aims of organic agriculture and the education of the consumer on the correlation between food production, the consumer and the environment, in particular by participation in or organisation of conferences and public events as well as the publication and dissemination of written information on these topics

Article 3
Charitable status

utes. Members do not receive any donations from Naturland's funds. It is prohibited to favour anyone by expenses which do not serve Naturland's purpose or by unreasonably high compensation.

The resolution must be presented to the Inland Revenue for approval before the dissolution can be deemed effective.

Article 4

Acquisition of membership

- (1) Any natural person or legal entity and any unincorporated group of individuals may become a member of Naturland. The board of directors decides upon the written application for membership. No legal right to admission exists. All other matters are governed by the rules of procedure of the board of directors.
- (2) The assembly of delegates has the right to appoint honorary members upon the recommendation by the board of directors.
- (3) In order to sustain the purpose defined under Art. 2 (1) of these statutes, applications for membership may also be accepted by sponsors. Sponsor members are not entitled to participate in any assemblies. Apart from this, Art. 4 (1) of these statutes applies.

Article 5

Admission fee, membership dues

- (1) All members pay an annual fee. It is payable in full even if membership commences or terminates in the course of the calendar year.

In addition, an admission fee may be charged for admission to Naturland.

- (2) The assembly of delegates determines the amount and date of payment of the annual fee and of the admission fee.
- (3) In addition, producer members may be charged a fee under the rules governing such fees as determined by the assembly of delegates. The board of directors may make temporary exceptions in individual cases, subject to the agreement of the provincial and states committees.
- (4) Honorary members are exempt from membership fees. Furthermore, the board of directors may forfeit or accept deferred payment of the admission fee or of membership fees, in whole or in part, for reasons of equity.

Article 6

Termination of membership

- (1) Membership terminates upon
 - the death of a member
 - voluntary withdrawal
 - termination of the producer contract
 - exclusion from Naturland.
- (2) Voluntary withdrawal is made by written declaration to the board of directors. Notice must be given at least three months before the end of any calendar month. The board of directors may agree to exceptions.
- (3) Given serious cause, a member may be excluded from Naturland by a resolution passed by the board of directors. A serious cause is in particular if the member
 - defaults on the membership fee despite two consecutive reminders
 - contravenes these statutes or Naturland's standards or the purpose of the association
 - violates contractual agreements concluded with Naturland or
 - inflicts gross harm on Naturland's interests.

Before the board of directors passes such a resolution, the member is to be granted an opportunity to make a statement of defence within an appropriate deadline. The resolution passed excluding the member must cite the reasons for this decision and be sent to the member by recorded delivery. The member has a right to appeal to the assembly of delegates against the resolution of exclusion passed by the board of directors. The appeal suspends the exclusion. The appeal must reach Naturland in writing within one month of receipt of the resolution of exclusion. If the appeal is filed within the deadline, the assembly of delegates has to make a final decision in the matter. If the assembly of delegates following the lodging of the appeal does not come to a final decision, then the resolution of exclusion is treated as not having been pronounced. If the member does not avail him- or herself of his or her right of appeal against the resolution of exclusion or misses the deadline for the appeal, then his or her membership terminates upon the conclusion of the period allowed for the appeal.

Article 7

The Naturland trademark

- (1) Naturland is the owner of various word and figurative marks containing the word “Naturland” (hereinafter referred to collectively as “the Naturland trademark”) which are protected in numerous European and non-European countries. Furthermore Naturland is the owner of the word mark “Naturland” (hereinafter “the word mark”) which is also protected in Germany and numerous European countries.
- (2) Naturland is entitled to transfer its right to grant non-exclusive rights to the use of the Naturland trademark to third parties (hereinafter “licensees”) in whole or in part.
- (3) Members are only entitled to use the Naturland trademark upon conclusion of a separate agreement (hereinafter “licence agreement”) between the member and Naturland or its licensees expressly permitting its use. This also applies where the word or symbol component of the Naturland trademark is used on its own.
- (4) Members are in particular only entitled to use the word mark as a brand, domain or part of a domain, or as a name or company name or to designate their business or enterprise or to refer to their membership of Naturland in printed matter, on packaging or other means of identification in the manner explicitly permitted under the licence agreement. Members are urged to ensure that business partners also only make reference to their business as being a member of Naturland, be they suppliers or customers, if they have concluded the relevant agreement.

- (5) In all cases, the definitive version of the Naturland trademark to be used is the trademark definition submitted to the German patent office in the currently valid version, where applicable.

Article 8

Structure

Naturland is divided into

1. central
2. regional and
3. operational entities

whereby none are legal personalities in their own right.

Article 9

Organisation

- (1) As central organs, the bodies of Naturland are:

- the assembly of delegates (Arts. 10 and 11)
- the board of directors (Art. 12)
- the standards committee (Art. 13),
- the certification committee (Art. 14).

- (2) On a regional level, the bodies of Naturland are:

1. in Germany
 - the provincial assemblies composed of Naturland members of any one German federal state, and the states assemblies composed of members of neighbouring federal states (Art. 15 sec. 1)
 - the provincial and states boards (Art. 16 sec. 1)
 - the national committee (Art. 17)

- the chairpersons of the regional groups (Art. 19. Sec. (2))
2. outside Germany
- the INTERNATIONAL assembly (Art. 15 Sec. 2)
 - the world advisory board (Art. 20)
- (3) At the operative level, the bodies of Naturland are:
- the professional committees (Art. 18 Sec. 1)
 - the chairpersons of the professional committees (Art. 18 Sec. 4).
- (4) The bodies pass their resolutions by simple majority of their members present and entitled to vote, unless these statutes or the law prescribe otherwise. Abstentions are not counted; in a tied vote, the motion is deemed as rejected. On the request of a member who is entitled to vote, voting shall be carried out by secret ballot in writing. A member is not entitled to vote in cases where the resolution to be passed causes conflict between the interests of Naturland and those of the member or people closely related to the member (spouses, relations and relatives by marriage up to the second degree).
- (5) Bodies are entitled to adopt their own rules of procedure. All rules of procedure of the standards and certification committees require the approval of the board of directors to become effective.
- (6) Resolutions of the bodies may also be passed by means of postal vote, which includes votes cast by telefax or email. In this case it is necessary for a simple majority of the members participating in the voting procedure, being at least 25% of the members entitled to vote, to have voted in favour of the motion or resolution within a deadline of at least four weeks of the invitation to cast their vote in writing, the timely receipt of the written vote being the date of its receipt by the board or by the chairperson or by the person in charge of the body. The bodies may also add further requirements to their rules of procedure.
- (7) The members of the bodies act in an honorary capacity unless these statutes expressly state otherwise or the members of the bodies are entitled to claim for appropriate compensation by virtue of an explicit resolution of the assembly of delegates.

Article 10 Assembly of delegates

- (1) The assembly of delegates consists of the delegates elected as per Art. 11, Sec. (1) of these statutes.
- (2) The assembly of delegates is solely responsible for the following matters:
- election and dismissal of the board of directors
 - adoption of the budget on the basis of the draft presented by the board of directors for the coming financial year
 - receipt of and resolution on the annual financial report of the board of directors, exonerate the board of directors

 - consultation and resolutions on the amounts of expenses to be paid to members of bodies
 - and any other business of Naturland which these statutes expressly ascribe to the assembly of delegates.
- (3) The assembly of delegates will be convoked by the board of directors at least once a year. The date is to be made public at least one month before the meeting. The invitation is sent to the delegates in writing as a standard letter at least two weeks before the date of the meeting along with the agenda drawn up by the board of directors. The invitation is deemed to have been received two days after posting to the delegates' latest addresses of which Naturland had been informed in writing. Motions proposed by bodies and individual delegates on the agenda have to be considered by the board of directors provided they are received by the presiding body at least three weeks before the date set for the assembly. Proposals for additional to be included on the agenda made during the assembly of delegates itself require a majority decision of two thirds of the valid votes cast in order to be admitted.
- (4) Given serious cause, the board of directors can call for an extraordinary assembly of delegates at any time at one week's prior notice. This meeting must be convened if matters particularly affecting Naturland's interest require it or if over one quarter of all delegates request the board of directors to convene such a meeting, the request having been made in writing and citing the purpose and the reasons for the meeting. The regulations governing the ordinary assembly of delegates also apply to the convening of and resolutions passed at the extraordinary assembly of delegates.
- (5) The assembly of delegates elects a chairperson and a person to take the minutes at each assembly. When elections take place, the chairperson can appoint an election committee to perform the functions of the chairperson for the duration of the election. The chairperson determines the method of voting. The delegates are not bound by directives when making their decisions. Besides the members of the board of directors, members of other organs and also guests invited by the board of directors to attend the assembly of delegates to help them form their opinions are entitled to participate in the assemblies of the delegates. They can participate in discussions and consultations but have no voting rights.
- (6) The assembly of delegates is quorate if over half of the delegates are present. In the absence of a quorum, the board of directors immediately issues an invitation to another assembly of delegates at two weeks' notice, with the same agenda. In this case the assembly is quorate independent of the number of delegates attending.
- (7) Minutes are to be taken of the resolutions passed by the assembly of delegates and have to be signed by the chairperson and the minute keeper of the assembly in question. The minutes must record the following items: place and time of the assembly, the name of the chairperson and the minute keeper, the number of delegates who attended the meeting, the agenda, the result of each vote and the voting procedure.

Article 11

Election of delegates

- (1) The delegates are elected by Naturland's members in the German provincial and states assemblies and in the INTERNATIONAL assembly. The number of delegates to be elected by each assembly is determined by the number of members entitled to vote pursuant to Art. 15 of these statutes. The ratios are as follows:
- Where one of the above-mentioned assemblies comprises between 25 and up to 100 members entitled to vote, one delegate is elected (i. e. 1 delegate for 25 to 100 members).

Furthermore:

- For up to another 100 members with voting rights of any assembly, one further delegate is elected (i. e. 1 further delegate for 101 to 200 members)

and

- for up to another 200 members with voting rights of any assembly, one further delegate is elected (i. e. 1 further delegate for 201 to 400 members)

and

- for up to another 200 members with voting rights of any assembly, one further delegate is elected (i. e. 1 further delegate for 401 to 600 members)

and

- for up to another 200 members with voting rights of any assembly, one further delegate is elected (i. e. 1 further delegate for 601 to 800 members)

and

- for up to another 200 members with voting rights of any assembly, one further delegate is elected (i. e. 1 further delegate for 801 to 1000 members)

and

- for up to another 500 members with voting rights of any assembly, one further delegate is elected (i. e. 1 further delegate for 1001 to 1500 members and 1 further delegate for 1501 to 2000 members etc.).

The number of members entitled to vote and belonging to any one assembly is the figure registered as of 31st December of the previous calendar year.

(2) The delegates are elected for a term of four years. They remain in office until the re-election of the delegates but at the most until the assembly called under Art. 11, Sec. (1), following the expiry of their term of office. Any reductions in the number of members entitled to vote in an assembly during the period of office of the delegates elected have no effect. If there is an increase in the number of members entitled to vote in an assembly during the term of office of the delegates elected, as of 31st December of any calendar year, then the candidate with the next highest number of votes moves up as a delegate with effect from 31st December of the calendar year in question until the expiry of the term of office of the other candidates. Should a delegate not attend three consecutive assemblies of delegates, irrespective of the reason, he or she shall resign from this office. A successor for any delegate resigning from the assembly for any reason whatsoever is determined according to the terms of Art. 11, Sec. (2), fourth sentence. Delegates are permitted to appoint a representative to the assembly of delegates once in their term of office to exercise their voting rights. Representation requires a written proxy at all events, on the understanding that any duly authorised representative to an assembly may always only represent one delegate. Only members of Naturland are eligible; however, legal entities may transfer their passive voting rights to third parties by means of a written declaration. Every member of an unincorporated company has passive voting rights. At least 75% of the delegates elected per assembly must be producer members unless no producer members or an insufficient number thereof stand for election. Every member of Naturland is entitled to nominate candidates to the office of delegate. One and the same person can be a member of only one of the central bodies of Naturland in accordance with the terms of Art. 9, Sec. (1).

(3) The delegates are elected by secret written ballot. Every member of an assembly who is entitled to vote has as many votes as the number of delegates to be elected. Cumulative voting is not permitted. In the German provincial and states assemblies the candidates elected are those for whom the greatest number of votes has been cast in the assembly, whereby, in the first round, they have to have received the votes of over half of the members present at the assembly who are entitled to vote. In the international assembly, the candidates elected are those who receive the greatest number of votes as representatives of the continents of Africa, America, Asia, Australia and Europe excluding Germany. A second representative of a continent, for whom the second largest number of votes is cast in the election of the delegates of all the continents which have Naturland members, is deemed as elected, provided every continent is already represented by at least one delegate. If a delegate should withdraw during his or her term of office, the seat falls to the candidate who has received the next highest number of votes. The term of office of the delegate who has moved up expires at the next meeting called in which a new delegate is to be elected. Should no such candidate be available, re-election shall take place at the next ordinary assembly as per Art. 11 (1).

Article 12

Board of directors

(1) The board of directors is Naturland's board of directors pursuant to Art. 26 BGB¹. It represents Naturland in both legal and non-legal matters. The board of directors is responsible for all Naturland's affairs insofar as they have not been attributed to another body. The presiding body is accountable to the assembly of delegates. In particular, it performs the following functions:

- convening the assembly of delegates
- execution of resolutions passed by the assembly of delegates
- drafting a budget for every financial year, keeping the accounts and preparation of an annual financial report. The budget must contain operational budgets for the bodies under Arts. 15, 16 and 18 of these statutes. The distribution of funds in the budget must take the source of the funds from the assemblies as per Art. 15, Sec. (1) and (2), and Art. 18, into consideration.
- conclusion and termination of licensing and production agreements
- conclusion and termination of employment contracts
- resolutions on the acceptance and exclusion of members

- resolutions on addenda and/or amendments to Naturland's standards in exceptional cases justified by their urgency, which are valid until the next assembly of delegates

(2) The board of directors has three members. Two further committee members may be elected, each having full voting rights. The board of directors and the two committee members together make up the extended board of directors. The extended board of directors, resp. the board of directors, elect one of the members of the board of directors as president and another as vice-president. The board of directors members represent Naturland jointly with another board of directors member except for board of directors members granted sole power of representation by a unanimous vote of the board of directors.

(3) The board of directors and the committee members are elected by the delegates for term of four years. However, they remain in office until the board of directors is re-elected. Any delegate may nominate candidates. Only members of Naturland are eligible for election. The members of the board of directors are elected by secret written ballot. Each delegate entitled to vote has as many votes as the number of members of the board of directors to be elected. Cumulative voting is not permitted. Those candidates for the board of directors are elected for whom the greatest number of votes has been cast, whereby, in the first round, they have to have received the votes of over half of the members present at the assembly who are entitled to vote. Nominations are still acceptable if made during the assembly in which the board of directors is to be elected. If a member of the board of directors or a committee member withdraws prematurely during his or her term of office, a replacement is elected at the next assembly of delegates for the remaining term of office of the board of directors. The members of the board of directors and the committee members cannot concurrently be members of one of Naturland's central bodies under Art. 9, Sec. (1). They are entitled to attend meetings of the other Naturland bodies and to contribute to the discussions but have no voting rights there. If a member of another of Naturland's central bodies is elected to the board of directors or as a committee member, he or she retires from the other office upon election.

- (4) Members of the board of directors and the committee members are entitled to adequate compensation of their activities in the board of directors. The compensation agreement is subject to approval by the assembly of delegates.
- (5) In order to perform the tasks defined in Art. 12, Sec. (1) of these statutes, the board of directors may appoint project teams. In particular, the board of directors may appoint a budget committee to advise the board of directors in budgetary matters.
- (6) In order to pursue Naturland's mission, the board of directors may establish one or several operational offices, determine their activities by rules of internal procedure and appoint full-time managers. Persons who are not members of Naturland may become managers or employees of the operational offices. The managers and other staff of the operational offices are paid salaries and are subject to the directives of the board of directors.

Article 13 Standards committee

- (1) The standards committee is composed of up to five members. They are elected for a term of four years by the assembly of delegates upon the proposal of the board of directors, remaining however in office until the standards committee is re-elected. Persons who are not members of Naturland are also eligible. A member is not entitled to vote if, at the time of voting, Naturland's interests may conflict with the personal interests of the member or of persons close to the member (spouses, relations and relatives by marriage up to the second degree).
- (2) The task of the standards committee is to elaborate and develop Naturland's standards and to make recommendations on Naturland standards to be passed and amended by the assembly of delegates. Furthermore, the commission decides upon the binding interpretation of Naturland's standards.

- (3) In order to perform the tasks falling under its range of responsibilities as defined in these statutes, the standards committee may establish project teams composed of persons with special fields of knowledge in the respective area of certification and who are appointed by the board of directors at the suggestion of the standards committee.

- (4) The standards committee is required to consult experts in relevant fields when deliberating upon standards of specific professional areas. Where professional committees as per Art. 18 exist, they may appoint an expert with speaking and consultation rights to the standards committee.

- (5) Where a professional committee is affected by standards or amendments to standards specific to their fields, upon which the assembly of delegates is to decide, the said professional committee has the right to refer these standards or amendments back once to the standards committee for further consultation. If it avails itself of this right, then the standards or their amendments do not become effective until the standards committee has conferred upon them once more, and then passed on its recommendations to the assembly of delegates which has then passed them. Furthermore, professional committees may draft proposals for amendments to the standards and present these to the standards committee.

Article 14 Certification committee

- (1) The certification committee consists of up to 20 members. These are elected for a term of four years by the assembly of delegates upon the proposal of the board of directors, remain however in office until the certification committee is re-elected. Persons who are not members of Naturland are also eligible. Coordinators of the certification sub-committees pursuant to Art. 14, Sec. (3) of these statutes are members of the certification committee with a right to vote. A member is not entitled to participate if, at the time of passing a resolution, Naturland's interests conflict with the member's personal interests or the interests of persons close to them (e. g. spouses, relations and relatives to the second degree). The members are obliged to disclose such conflicts of interest at their own initiative. The members of the certification committee should represent various professions and areas of society in order to guarantee the requisite expertise in the fields certified and the neutrality of the certification committee. The following areas in particular should be represented:

- science and research
 - production of organic produce
 - processing of/trade in organic produce
 - consultancy in the field of organic agriculture
 - consumer and environmental protection
- (2) It is the task of the certification committee to monitor the practical implementation of and conformity to Naturland's standards by its producer members and other persons who have committed themselves contractually to compliance with Naturland's standards (hereinunder "contractual partners"). In particular, it decides on whether to issue its annual certificate confirming compliance with standards and, where producer members or contractual partners breach the standards, on the imposition of the penalties listed in the contracts.
- (3) The certification committee is not bound to directives or recommendations of other Naturland bodies. The certification committee may determine in its procedural rules that sub-committees may be established to perform the functions for which it is responsible under the statutes. These sub-committees are composed of at least two members of the certification committee and the respective co-ordinator of the sub-committee. The rules of procedure may stipulate that, to make a quorum, at least half of the sub-committee's members must be present.
- (4) The certification may establish a secretariat to perform the functions for which it is responsible under the statutes, with the agreement of the board of directors. The members of the secretariat, whose activities set out in the rules of procedure of the certification committee, receive a salary and are bound by the directives of the certification committee in their special field.

Article 15

Regional assemblies, International assembly

- (1) All members of Naturland having their main place of residence or of business or headquarters of its association within the territory of a province of the Federal Republic of Germany constitute the national assembly. If the number of members of any province or of several adjacent provinces does not constitute the minimum number of members necessary to elect a delegate to the assembly of delegates pursuant to Art. 11, Sec. 1, first enumeration, of these statutes, then they form a states assembly by combining the regional assemblies of adjacent provinces. Every provincial assembly has to join the provincial assembly of an adjacent province or the states assembly of adjacent provinces which, when including the members of the adjoining provincial assembly, has reached or exceeded the minimum number of members pursuant to Art. 11, Sec. 1, first enumeration of these statutes for the election of a delegate. The amalgamation of various states assemblies becomes invalid in the following calendar year if, during the previous calendar year,
1. one of the regional assemblies acquires enough members to be able to elect one or several delegates on its own, or
 2. the regional assembly chooses to join a different adjacent regional assembly or states assembly, which is possible at the earliest at the next election of delegates.
- (2) All members of Naturland with their main place of residence or of business or the headquarters of their association in the territory of a state outside the Federal Republic of Germany constitute the INTERNATIONAL assembly.
- (3) All the assemblies under Art. (1) and (2) pass resolutions in general meetings. Every ordinary member of Naturland has a vote in the meeting. Members can issue proxies to be represented in the meetings. The proxy must at all events be in writing and the authorised representative may only represent one member in any one meeting.

- (4) The regional and states assemblies perform the following functions:
1. They implement the purposes of these statutes as per Art. 2 in their respective regions.
 2. They elect delegates and regional boards.
 3. They put motions to the assembly of delegates and formulate recommendations for the realisation of Naturland's aims.
 4. They may establish working groups to perform certain tasks.
- (5) The members of the assemblies named above meet at least once a year for an assembly. They are called by the board of directors or by the board elected by the assembly at four weeks' notice, the invitation to include the agenda. The board of directors or the board of the respective assembly may call for an extraordinary meeting at one week's notice. The invitation to and the running of the meeting and the minutes taken are covered by Art. 9, Sec. (4), and Art. 10, Sec. (3) to (7), of these statutes.

Article 16 Provincial and states boards

- (1) The provincial board members – which are not boards of directors pursuant to Art. 26 BGB² – are the delegates elected. Assemblies under Art. 15, Sec. (1), which do not have a delegate, may elect a provincial board at each of the respective states assemblies. In addition, committee members, the number of which is to be determined by the assembly, may be elected. The term of office of this board is concurrent with that of the delegates pursuant to Art. 11, Sec. (2) of these statutes, and it remains in office until the new elections.
- (2) The boards of German provinces are called provincial boards. If the assembly should elect more than one person to the provincial board, this board may elect a chairperson and another as vice-chairperson from among the board members.

- (3) The function of the provincial and states boards are to convene the assemblies at which they are elected, to execute the resolutions passed there and to run the business of Naturland which falls under the responsibility of this assembly in agreement with the board of directors, particularly observing the interests of the members of the assembly. Where it has to represent Naturland in public, the board of directors may endow the provincial chairperson or other board members with the authority to execute necessary business. The details are covered by rules of representation to be passed by the assembly of delegates.
